I was chosen from many instructors to carry out a course in Project Management in the Group's corporate in Jeddah.

30 participants from the top management of different key functions and of different nationalities, mainly Saudi Arabian, Indian, and Philippines, attended the course.

This course was characterized by the use of real projects from the core of the bank business such as models to implement PMI's methodologies.

The trainees' interaction and response were excellent. Based on the course assessment, another course was held for engineers and technicians from different departments where success and response were brilliant.
